water supply sources. The City of Belton initiated Stage 1 of the Drought Contingency Plan prior to 2014. Stage 1 is a mild water shortage condition that encourages voluntary conservation of water. The triggers for Stage 1 are one of the following: 1. Brazos River Authority enters into Stage 1 Drought Watch. According to the BRA Drought Contingency Plan, Stage 1 for Lake Belton is based on a drawdown of 6.8 feet. 2. When total daily water demand equals or exceeds 6.45 million gallons for three consecutive days or 7.31 million gallons on a single day. 3. Total treated water in the elevated storage does not refill to 80% of capacity overnight. All components of the BRA reservoir system are above BRA's Stage 1 trigger levels, Belton's daily water demand is well under 6.45 million gallons, and the elevated storage tanks are able to refill overnight. Therefore, the City of Belton officially rescinds Drought Stage 1. The City will continue to coordinate with the Brazos River Authority and monitor the water demand in the City. Should dry conditions materialize or emergency conditions occur, the City of Belton will announce the initiation of the required drought stages.
